

Dear FCC,

I am writing concerning LPFM stations taking priority over current FM translators.

My concern is specifically is the translators that handle signals from K-LOVE and AIR 1. K-LOVE and AIR 1 are a national and regional broadcasters. Many of the stations in the Central California and Bay Area of California use local FM translators.

K-LOVE and AIR 1 not only services my local community, but as I travel the Central Valley and Bay Area of California with my employment, I rely on the translators in different areas, separates by different mountain ranges. All of presets on my vehicle radios are set to these different translator frequencies.

The K-LOVE theme is positive and encouraging, a safe place for the whole family. My children leave the radio set to this station and listen as they sleep. There are few radio stations available where you can trust the content is suitable for young children.

Replacement of these signals will have a significant impact on me and my family, and undoubtedly many others like us.

Thank you for your time.

Respectfully, Greg Latronica and family Los Banos, California
